Packers need to come back strong

Ray Nitschke

Featured columnist

Kansas City kind of set the tone from the first play of the game on Sunday, and from that point on it was an uphill battle for the Green Bay Packers.

The Packers lost 27-20 to the Chiefs, who did the things that you have to do in order to win. They got on the board early, took control with their running game and they didn't have any turnovers.

The Packers and Chiefs are two evenly matched teams, but the team that makes the least amount of mistakes is the team that's going to win in the National Football League. On Sunday, it was the Chiefs. The Packers had some penalties early in the game and then made some turnovers. Losing tight end Mark Chmura to an injury was a blow to the Packers' offense. Cornerback Doug Evans' ejection from the game for bumping into an official while protesting an interference call in the second quarter was a blow to the Packers' defense. It was one of those days where the Packers couldn't get anything going.

You have to take your hat off to Kansas City. The Chiefs proved that they're a tough team to beat. They put pressure on Brett Favre and pretty much took away the short passing game. They played the Packer receivers tight. The Packers got their offense in gear in the second half but it was too late. Kansas City grabbed hold of the momentum from the get-go and held off the Packers.

It seems like when the Packers play well, they get ahead and dictate the game. In this one, Kansas City got ahead early in the game and dictated the way the Packers played. The Chiefs just outplayed the Packers.

Road games like this is all part of it in the NFL. Teams can certainly learn a lot about themselves away from home.

If the Packers are going to get a wake-up call this is the time to have it. They're going to want to come together in the next few weeks and not lose sight of the remaining games on the schedule. It's only their second loss of the season, but they just have to regroup and get back to the type of football they were playing early in the season. That was when they didn't turn the ball over and the defense created turnovers. This team has the ability to do that. I haven't lost faith in the Packers, but they have to regain what they were doing early in the season.

A good time to start would be this Monday night in Irving, Texas, when they play the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys are coming off a big 20-17 overtime win over the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday. Green Bay can't go into Dallas and perform like they did against Kansas City.

In order to beat the Cowboys, you have to be aggressive. You can't let Emmitt Smith run the ball because that's where the Cowboys can beat you up. You have to play a good all-around game to beat Dallas. If the Packers have any idea of going to the Super Bowl this year, they're going to have to make a statement. This is certainly a big game for Green Bay. It's an opportunity to break a six-game losing streak to the Cowboys in Texas Stadium and a chance to get revenge from the Championship game loss last January.

Dallas is not as strong as it has been in recent years. I think whoever suits up for Green Bay should be ready to go. This will be a big challenge for the Packers. It's a time for individual players to rise to the occasion and make big plays. Winning games like this is what champions are made of. This is the time to do it. This is the kind of game you look for, especially coming off a so-so performance against Kansas City.

Pack tossed for a loss

Chiefs' defense, running game too much to handle

By Todd Korth

KANSAS CITY – This is beginning to hurt.

The Green Bay Packers played another game without one of their top receivers and there wasn't much Brett Favre could do about it, nor could he do anything when one of Green Bay's starting cornerbacks was ejected from the game.

The Chiefs did something about it, though.

Kansas City's defense put constant pressure on Favre while its offense ran the ball effectively behind reserve Greg Hill, who scored two of his three touchdowns in the second quarter, as the Chiefs dropped the Packers, 27-20, before 79,281 fans at cold and noisy Arrowhead Stadium.

Green Bay had its five-game winning streak snapped and fell to 8-2. The Chiefs improved to 7-3.

"We lost to a great football team," said Favre, who was sacked four times and forced out of the pocket on a number of other occasions. "They played well. We fought hard and we came back. It surprised me that they blitzed as much as they did.

Chiefs 27
Packers 20

Their defense played great and their offense put up some points."

Linebacker Derrick Thomas had two sacks, five tackles and forced a fumble. He was in Favre's face all day.

"We knew about Favre's ability to scramble," Thomas said. "We knew that was going to make the task a bit more difficult. We had confidence in our defensive backs that they would give us some time to get to him."

Green Bay, once again had one of its key receivers leave the game with an injury.

When tight end Mark Chmura went down with a strained arch in his left foot in the first quarter, it marked the fourth straight game that a starting receiver got hurt in the first quarter and the third time that receiver was knocked out of the game for the Packers.

To make matters worse, cornerback Doug Evans was ejected from the game early in the second quarter after he was called for interference on wide receiver Tamarick Vanover. As Evans protested the penalty, he bumped into an official and was immediately given the hook.

It was a big day for Marcus Allen, who set an NFL record by playing in his 200th game, but it was a career day for Hill, Allen's backup. The third-year pro sparked the Chiefs by running for two touchdowns and catching another one. Hill finished with 94 yards on 14 carries.

"What has happened is Greg has confidence in what he's doing," said Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer. "There's a certain excitement generated when he gets in and gets going for the entire blocking unit."

Hill's third touchdown of the game came one play after Favre fumbled on Green Bay's first play from scrimmage in the second half. Hill darted through a huge hole in the middle, broke two tackles and scampered into the end zone as Kansas City took a commanding 27-6 lead.

"The last two weeks offensively teams have run the ball on us," said defensive end Reggie White. "We have to correct that. We weren't getting our blocks. Anytime you are not getting the blocks teams are going to run well against you."

Kansas City gained 182 of its 383 total yards on the ground. The Packers had 360 yards of offense, 75 on the ground.

A large chunk of Green Bay's offense came late in the third quarter.

The Packers closed to 27-13 on Favre's 25-yard touchdown pass to Don Beebe. The 83-yard drive was kept alive when Kansas City was called for two penalties that gave the Packers first downs.

The Packers had the ball on the Chiefs' 41 with 6:28 remaining in the game, but running back Edgar Bennett was stopped short running around the right end on a fourth and two.

Despite forcing the Chiefs to punt on their next two series, Green Bay was still in the game with 1:02 left after Favre threw a six-yard pass to rookie Derrick Mayes for a touchdown.

Todd McNair fumbled Green Bay's onside kickoff but Kimble Anders recovered and Kansas City ran out the clock.

"We battled to the end, but we were too sloppy today," said Holmgren. "We did not deserve to win this one."

The Chiefs sliced through Green Bay's top-ranked defense in the second quarter, scoring three straight times, to take a 20-6 halftime lead.

Hill, filling in for Allen, carried the Chiefs to their first touchdown in the game. Hill ran for 37 yards on four carries and scored on an eight-yard run to put the Chiefs up 13-3.

Favre threw three straight incompletions on the ensuing series and the Packers were forced to punt for the third straight time. In fact, the Packers punted the ball away on four of their five possessions in the first half as Favre was 11 of 20 for 87 yards and under pressure from Kansas City's strong defensive line.

Evans' ejection is surprising

By Todd Korth

KANSAS CITY – Cornerback Doug Evans' ejection from the game Sunday for unsportsmanlike conduct was even more surprising than the penalty that he was called for early in the second quarter against the Chiefs.

Evans was flagged for interference while defending Chiefs wide receiver Tamarick Vanover even though it appeared that Vanover tried to prevent Evans from catching the ball by reaching over his shoulder and knocking it away.

The Packers thought the interference call would be on Vanover and were quite surprised when the officials called Evans' number for the yellow flag.

"The normal reaction is to protest," said Packers strong safety LeRoy Butler. "This is America. You should be able to protest. This is not Communism where you say, 'OK, they are right.'"

Evans raised his arms in disgust, but made the mistake of brushing one of the referees and was immediately ejected from the game.

"Doug Evans is the last guy who should ever get thrown out of a game," said Packers coach Mike Holmgren. "He's the nicest guy I got, but you can't touch the official."

Tyrone Williams took Evans' place. He had two tackles and one pass defensed.

No takeaways: The Packers, who entered the game Sunday with a league-leading 29 takeaways, played their second straight game without forcing a turnover.

"That's painful, very painful," said Butler.

Injury update: The status of tight end Mark Chmura was not immediately known after the game. Chmura suffered a sprained arch in his left foot in the first quarter and had to leave the game.

Extra points: Kansas City's Marcus Allen played in his 200th NFL game on Sunday, breaking Mosi Tatupu's record set for running backs. Tatupu played from 1978-91.

Allen also surpassed John Riggins (11,321) for the sixth spot on the NFL's all-time rushing list. Allen gained 48 yards against the Packers to boost his total to 11,369.

Rookie Derrick Mayes caught his first NFL touchdown with 1:02 left in the game, Favre's 135th TD of his career and 27th of the season.

Fullback Dorsey Levens caught five passes for 83 yards and ran five times for 25 yards in Green Bay's 27-20 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs on Sunday. His 49-yard reception set up Green Bay's final touchdown. For his efforts, the staff at the Packer Report named Levens the No Name Steaks player of the game.

■ Packers/First play sets the tone

The Chiefs struck again, this time on Steve Bono's 35-yard pass to Hill off a play-action fake in the left side of the end zone. The score capped a four-play, 61-yard drive that was highlighted by Bono's 19-yard pass to Anders to Green Bay's 35.

Chris Jacke's 49-yard field goal as time expired in the first half closed the Packers to 20-6. Jacke booted a 24-yarder after the Chiefs' Pete Stoyanovich made a 26-yard attempt early in the first quarter.

Bono's 69-yard pass to wide receiver Sean LaChapelle over cornerback Craig Newsome got the Chiefs to the 10. The completion was Kansas City's longest this season, longest by Bono since 1991 and longest against the Packers this year.

"We had talked about it as a play that had a chance," Schottenheimer said.

Packer fans: Kick back, enjoy season

Larry McCarren

Featured columnist

Memo to Packer fans everywhere: Enjoy it.

The fans of a team on its way to the top seem to have a lifecycle of their very own. At first, there's just good old-fashioned exhilaration with each victory, which is especially true after a long draught like Packer fans have endured.

As the victories become more and more commonplace, that excitement starts moving toward satisfaction and contentment. We're just getting accustomed to life on the winning side.

After that stage has run its course, a germ can start infecting what should be nothing but enjoyment. As that germ spreads and multiplies some fans will be stricken with "not good enough" disease. They'll say, "Sure the Packers won, but they didn't have enough rushing yardage." Another infected fan will add, "Yeah, their third-down defense on the plus side of the 50 needs some work, too."

Don't know what it's like where you live, but I heard a little bit of that kind of talk in Green Bay a couple weeks ago after the Packers beat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 13-7. Not a ton of it, but it's enough to show the early signs of the "not good enough" affliction.

It's an accomplishment to beat anybody in the NFL, regardless of how it's done. Every team has its share of outstanding athletes, who, on a given Sunday, can put it all together and play like it.

As much as coaches, and we too as fans would like, a team's performance never looks like a 45-degree angle going up when put on a graph. When you're talking ups and downs, hot streaks and cold spells, healthy and injured, with a good team, or in the Packers case, a "real" good team, those peaks and valleys are small, but they do exist. It's just the way human beings function. Nobody, or no group of bodies, improves in a nice, neat, seemingly organized amount every week. There's always going to be a few bumps in the road along the way. The real good teams figure out a way to win in spite of them (Green Bay 13, Tampa Bay 7).

What the Packers have done to date hasn't been done in Green Bay in 30 years. That should tell us something: It's damn hard to do! There's probably a better chance of getting struck by lightning than winning week in and week out in the NFL. Literally hundreds, maybe even thousands of Packer players, coaches and front office people, had tried for three decades and didn't get it done. This is a very special time and Packer fans owe it to themselves to revel in it.

Already this season, the Packers have gone from a Super Bowl contender to a Super Bowl favorite. The Packers and their fans don't have to take a back seat to anybody. The team earned that right on the field, and the Packer fans earned that right through years of unwavering support.

Sure, it's a fan's prerogative to fret and worry about this or that, but please don't let that get in the way of your appreciation of the moment. Like we said at the top, enjoy it.

Cowboys as vulnerable as ever

Todd Korth

Packer Report Editor

Little by little, like sand sifting through an hourglass, the Dallas Cowboys are coming back down to earth.

Sure, the win they picked up Sunday in San Francisco may have been a lifesaver, but they're not as dominant as they've been in recent seasons.

The defending Super Bowl champs improved to 6-4 by edging the 49ers 20-17 in overtime. Until Sunday's game, Dallas' chances of even making the playoffs were diminishing by the week and it looked like they wouldn't even be able to defend their NFC East title for the first time since 1991. Now, things are looking a little better for Dallas.

Still, if there was ever a time for the Green Bay Packers to bring the Cowboys to their knees – without the use of a career-threatening chop block – this is it.

This should be the time, on Monday Night Football, on the Texas Stadium turf that the Packers knock the Cowboys on their you know what and show the nation that they are for real this season and more than just the "real" America's Team.

The Packers stumbled Sunday to the Chiefs, 20-17 at Arrowhead Stadium. Now it's time to rumble with the Cowboys.

Not that anyone is feeling sorry for them, but the Cowboys simply do not have the depth on their team that enables them to win consistently this year. Jerry Jones danced his way into paying huge signing bonuses for his superstars and now must pay the fiddler through free agency losses resulting in lack of depth.

With the exception of Emmitt Smith, the Cowboys' main attractions have gotten another year older, but not necessarily any better. There have been indications of that recently. On a first and goal from the 3, quarterback Troy Aikman was unable to get the Cowboys into the end zone against the Eagles and wound up throwing an interception to former Packer James Willis. The flamboyant Deion Sanders has been playing both ways at cornerback and wide receiver but hasn't excelled at either position. Wide receiver Michael Irvin can be a threat, but has had problems against bigger cornerbacks like Philadelphia's Bobby Taylor and even bigger problems off the field.

The Packers closed the gap significantly on the Cowboys in the off-season by addressing needs that will help them win in Texas Stadium.

The addition of Santana Dotson and the emergence of Gilbert Brown along the defensive line should enable to Packers to put more of a pass rush on Aikman. The improved speed among the Packer linebackers should help the Pack jam the middle running lanes or cover Smith in the flat if the Cowboys opt to throw short passes to their superstar running back. Green Bay's secondary has been terrific this season and should be able to hound Irvin and Sanders.

Kansas City had all kinds of success running the ball against Green Bay, gaining 182 yards. If the Packers allow the Cowboys to do the same, it will be a long night.

It's a cliche, but the team with the least mistakes generally wins. When Dallas has lost this season, it has made turnovers. Same with the Packers in their two losses to the Minnesota Vikings and Chiefs.

The Packers have been forcing turnovers at a league-leading rate, which has enabled them not only to to win, but win big in many cases. Through nine games, the Packers led the league with 29 takeaways to the Cowboys' 17. Green Bay, however, hasn't gotten any takeaways in the last two games and needs to get back on track in that department.

The Packers have been hurting at wide receiver and, now, tight end with Mark Chmura injured, but quarterback Brett Favre has been able to adjust and move the Packers. The offensive line has enabled Edgar Bennett to run the ball more effectively and Keith Jackson will have to step it up until Chmura returns.

For the Cowboys, the clock is ticking. For the Packers, the time is right to give Dallas a licking.

Chiefs put the heat on Favre

Kansas City forces quarterback out of pocket with blitzes

By Laura Veras Marran

KANSAS CITY – It would be unreasonable to expect even a quarterback of Brett Favre's caliber to have a great game every week. But a better day than the one Favre endured at Arrowhead Stadium on Sunday wouldn't have been unrealistic, either.

Favre was sacked four times, lost a fumble, threw an interception and was under constant pressure from the Kansas City defense in Green Bay's 27-20 loss to the Chiefs. In the Packers' two losses, Favre has been sacked 11 times and has turned the ball over five times. Sunday, it was easier to count the plays on which Favre had time to make multiple reads than it was to keep track of the hurries.

"I've come to expect great things from him every week," Packers coach Mike Holmgren said. "So if we're not clicking on all cylinders, I have a tendency to be too harsh with him. He's our leader, he's a great football player. As he goes, we go. That will never change."

Despite the grueling day, Favre still put up respectable numbers: 27 of 49 (57.1 percent) for 310 yards and two touchdown passes.

In the comeback effort, Favre threw for 222 yards and both touchdowns to push his total to 27 for the season. Those scores came on drives of 83 and 74 yards and pulled the Packers to within 27-20. In the waning moments, Favre never got the chance to drive for the tie as the Chiefs pushed through for a clock-killing first down.

"It surprised me that they blitzed as much as they did," Favre said. "Their defense played great and their offense put up some points.

"We lost to a great football team. They played well. We played hard and fought back," he said.

Chiefs' linebacker Derrick Thomas kept Favre on the run with two sacks for 18 yards, a forced fumble and a fumble recovery.

"We got out of the gate right away and made some big plays," Thomas said. "We knew about Favre's ability to scramble, we knew that was going to make the task a bit more difficult. We had confidence in our defensive backs that they would give us some time to get to him. Today the combination of coverage and pressure worked."

That combination took advantage of the areas where injuries have taken the biggest toll: the offensive line and receiving corps. The injured list stretched even longer after Mark Chmura left the game in the first half with a strained arch. Anthony Morgan and Terry MIckens both suffered neck injuries on jarring hits.

Holmgren said the depleted receiving ranks aren't affecting play calling or what this offense and Favre can do. The coach said he is relying on his younger players to step up.

Rookie Derrick Mayes caught his first NFL touchdown on a six-yard pass from Favre in the fourth quarter.

Second-year pro Antonio Freeman, who suffered a broken left forearm, is expected to return by Dec. 1. Holmgren said it's a longshot to expect Freeman back for the Dallas game this Monday night.

Coach's quotes

Mike Holmgren's comments after Green Bay's 27-20 loss to the Kansas City Chiefs

A tough game, coach?

"Tough game. A good team. Kansas City is a fine football team. We battled to the end, but we were too sloppy today. We did not deserve to win this one. You can't play a team the caliber of the Kansas City Chiefs and be that sloppy with the football."

Did the wind come out of the team's sails when you lost Doug (Evans) and Mark Chmura?

"It shouldn't. It hurt us because they are two starters, but I don't think so. Keith Jackson got in their and played. Tyrone (Williams) played at the corner. Certainly it's going to have some effect. I wouldn't say attitude-wise or wind in your sails or anything."

What was the key to their ability to run in the first and especially second quarter?

"I don't know. One, they are good at it. Two, I think their offensive line did a nice job today. I don't know, they ran on us. That's the first time this season someone has done that to us."

Did the first play of the game surprise you?

"It didn't surprise me. I kind of thought that it was a nice call. Craig (Newsome) got beat on the play. He's been one of my most consistent defensive backs all season and give credit to Kansas City. That guy (LaChapelle) made a great play as a receiver and Steve (Bono) threw a beautiful pass."

Is Kansas City among that upper tier of NFL teams?

"I think they are a very good football team. I think they are very well-coached and they've gone to the playoffs six years in a row. They aren't the new kids on the block ... they are there. We are kind of the new kids on the block. We're trying to get into the deal.

"This is a wonderful place to play football. The crowd loves them. It's good for my team. It's good to play in stadiums like this. It's good to play in this kind of environment because it tells you a lot about yourself."

Coach Mike Holmgren protests Doug Evans' (33) ejection Sunday.

Did Favre get adequate protection or was Kansas City's secondary that good in coverage?

"They are going to get their pressures because of the talent that they have on defense, in my opinion. You just try to limit that somewhat.

"Their secondary is good. They disrupted the timing of our routes. They are very physical and aggressive. They were pretty effective, I think."

You took (John) Michels out. Do you think he struggled or did you just want to see Ken Ruettgers?

"I just wanted to see Ruettgers. Ken was going to play some. Hopefully he came through it OK. He was real iffy. I made that decision today."

Was this a learning experience, a step in the right direction?

"I would have preferred to have won the football game and still have it be a learning experience. I think it was. We knew this was going to be a tough stretch. We knew how good this team was. I think They're going to be in the hunt for it at the end in the AFC certainly. Playing on the road here is never an easy thing.

"We're playing a lot of young guys who are banged up a little bit. If you can get any good out of it, out of a loss, that's how I choose to look at it. That's how we're going to approach it."

Is Derrick Mayes doing anything to consider getting him on the field more?

"Well, he made a great catch for a touchdown. He has ability. There is a young guy who has been hurt. This week he was sick. He had a real bad flu, so he didn't practice a couple days. He's just stumbling through with injuries ... but he's a talented man. We'll bring him along. We don't have a lot of choices now at wide receiver, so, they're all going to play."

Do you feel hamstrung as a play caller now with who you have at wide receiver?

"No. Not really. As the game progresses, if I feel we're not getting it done there, I might emphasize another package that we have.

Right now, I'm challenging those guys to play and I'm going to call the game the same."

Was the first play of the second half a killer?

"That was a tough one because I gave one of my great halftime speeches of all time. We come out and, 'Bam!' All that hard work went down the tubes."

Were you disappointed in Brett at all today?

"I've come to expect great things from him every week. If we're not clicking on all cylinders, I have a tendency to be too harsh with him. He's our leader. He's a great footbball player. As he goes, we go.

How to beat the Cowboys

Here's what some Packer players feel Green Bay will have to do better in order to beat the Dallas Cowboys this Monday night:

"We've got to stop the run. No question. We've never stopped them since we've been going there the last three or four years.

"We have to stop the run and we have to stop (Troy) Aikman. If we don't do that, it's going to be the same as it was today. It's not going to be good."

LeRoy Butler, strong safety

"Everytime we've been to Dallas – they're a great team as well (as Kansas City) – we didn't execute and we didn't play as well as we're capable of playing. When we play well, we beat people. When we don't execute and don't play well, we don't beat people. Kansas City was a better football team than us on this given day. They're a good football team in general, but that wasn't the Green Bay Packers out there.

Aaron Taylor, guard

"We played them very well last year, if you ask me. We just have to look at last year's film (and learn from that)."

Keith Jackson, tight end

Robinson promoted, Dowden waived

The Packers signed defensive back Michael Robinson off of their practice squad on Nov. 8 and released defensive back Corey Dowden to make room on the active roster.

Defensive end Walter Scott was re-signed to fill the spot vacated on the five-man practice squad by Robinson's move to the active roster.

Robinson, a rookie out of Hampton University, had been on the practice squad since Aug. 27. Dowden joined the Packers on Aug. 21 when he was claimed on waivers from the New Orleans Saints. Scott was waived by New England on Nov. 5. He originally signed with Green Bay on April 26 and was traded to the Pats on Augs. 25 with tight end Mike Bartrum.

Back of the Pack

Pederson makes best of his role as team's third-string quarterback

Lee Remmel

Featured columnist

Being the designated "third quarterback," week in and week out during the National Football League season, is a largely anonymous pursuit. Except, perhaps, in Green Bay, where every Packer player is a celebrity.

Doug Pederson, who fills this assignment in green and gold, practices every day, attends every team and quarterbacks meeting and suits up for every game – from July through December – just as Brett Favre and Jim McMahon do.

On game day, however, he finds himself a sideline observer. Equipped with a clipboard, he charts the action and, when Favre comes off the field, communicates what he has gleaned from his perspective.

Unlike Favre and McMahon, Pederson knows that, barring unusual circumstances, i.e., injuries to both of them, he will not be on the playing field that day, except for the pre-game warmups.

At the same time, he obviously must be prepared, at all times, for the possibility he will be called upon – a situation which last occurred to a Packer third quarterback in Green Bay's 1995 appearance against the Vikings at the Minneapolis Metrodome. In that game, Favre and his backup, Ty Detmer, went down with injuries and third quarterback T.J. Rubley had to drop his clipboard and take to the field.

On an off day off, as Pederson and the Packers were preparing to take on the Kansas City Chiefs, Number 18 was asked how he feels about his background role.

"Well, you know, I've been in a situation where I've been able to play, of course, in Miami in '93 when Dan Marino got hurt," Doug replied. "But I've also been behind guys who have been starters for a long time in this league and, you know, I just have to be patient with it. I have to go in every game mentally as if I'm going to play, and that's the way I kind of get myself ready for each game on Sunday."

Although he has not seen the field on game day to date, Pederson says there are satisfactions for him.

"I can't see myself doing anything else right now, you know," he confided. "And I've learned to kind of sink into my role as a backup quarterback in the league. And maybe it'll be that way for a few years.

"Eventually, yeah, you'd like to be in a situation where you could start a game or, two, be able to play. But, right now, I feel comfortable with where I'm at, and I'll just keep going from there."

Keeps himself ready

How, knowing he is not likely to be playing on game day, does he motivate himself?

"It's hard...It's hard knowing you're not going to play," he readily acknowledged. "I know going back to preseason, I knew I was going to play, so the motivation factor was easy – to get myself ready – because I knew I was going out there and playing. ...But, right now, even in practice, you know, I just run the service team, the offense, and motivation, I guess, is just to be the best I can be at practice – not only to help our defense but to make me better. Because there's going to maybe come a time when I have to go into a ball game, and I can just feed off of those experiences."

From a preparation standpoint, one thing is certain about Pederson's modus operandi – he is always in optimum condition physically.

"He's very conscientious in the weights room," says Barry Rubin, Packer strength and conditioning assistant, who formerly coached Doug when he was a collegian at Northeast Louisana. "He's a very hard worker, and he runs a lot."

Pederson, affirming, "I've got to stay physically ready," he says, "That's not the hard part, really. The hard part for me is mental...and being in the state where, if something happens, I can go into the game and function. I know the physical tools are there and I'm confident in that. It's just the mental state now - knowing what Brett knows, you know, when he starts on Sunday."

And how, he was asked, does he stay involved, mentally, on game day as the third quarterback?

"Well, it helps me to stay focused mentally because I chart the plays on Sunday," he replied. "I stand next to Marty (Mornhinweg) and I hear the call, and I write the plays down. So I'm in the game mentally because I know the play.

"And then from there, he asks me to chart coverages and defenses, you know, and maybe some tendencies that they're starting to do on down-and-distances. And that keeps me, you know, mentally prepared."

Team's 'Front Doctor'

With the Chiefs the opponent at hand, does he, for example, consciously attempt to imitate Kansas City quarterback Steve Bono for the benefit of the defense on the practice field?

"At times...at times I try to know who the opposing quarterback is and maybe some little things that they do on the field...or certain receivers that they are kind of favorites toward. And, like this week, Bono, you know, he's with Marcus Allen in the backfield, you know, and things like that. And sometimes they'll put Dale Carter at wide receiver. And, you know, there's things that you kind of pick up on and try to imitate...Yeah, I do that sometimes."

"By no means do I want to settle into a third-string role, or anything," he assured. "I want to get better and maybe move into a back-up role some day. And I know Brett's going to be here – he's going to be a starter."

Doug Pederson

Although Pederson has yet to make his first NFL start, both head coach Mike Holmgren and Mornhinweg, the Packers' quarterback coach, are convinced he has the ability to be an effective field general in the NFL.

"I think Doug could be a fine quarterback in this league," Mornhinweg says. "I think he has the physical tools – the arm strength, the accuracy, and the mobility.

"His decision-making in the preseason was very good. He showed he could move the team and score some points. And, during each week of the regular season, he is always well-prepared mentally, even though he doesn't get any reps in practice."

Exhibiting an affectionate smile, Mornhinweg added, "The other quarterbacks call him the 'Front Doctor.' He prides himself on recognizing all defenses and he'll always, in meetings, blurt out what the front is...'That's a '57 front,' or 'that's a '50 front' or 'a 59.'"

Key sideline informant

Pederson's role, Marty concedes, is not an easy one.

"I think, as a third quarterback – and, even to some extent, the second quarterback – has to be a guy who can come in and play the game without much practice time and still be effective," he said, pointing out, "In our situation, Brett will always get 99.9 per cent of the reps.

"But Jim and Doug stay sharp by working in our 7-on-7 and when our offense services the defense. It's the other team's plays but at least they can stay sharp with their footwork and their throws.

"During the game, Doug charts our plays," Marty confided. "He stands by me to get the play...Both he and Jim grab Brett right when he comes off the field and give him the information on what they have seen. It's the first information Brett gets when he comes off the field, and they both are excellent at that."

Pederson himself, subsequently addressing the tri-cornered situation, asserted, "I feel it's a really good relationship. I've been asked that question a bunch – even in Miami with Marino and (Bernie) Kosar. And, to me, I was 26-27 years old and they were 31, 32...There's a separation there. With Brett and I – we're the same age. In fact, I'm a year older than Brett.

"And with Jim...Jim, he's kind of a kid at heart, anyway, you know. And he can really come down and act like he's 25 again, too. So it's a great relationship here."

Strong preseason

As might be expected, Pederson's busiest moments as a Packer came during the preseason, when he had an opportunity to see extensive action in Green Bay's first three games.

Curiously enough, the 6-foot-3, 215-pound Bellingham, Wash., native put up numbers almost identical to those of Favre during that stretch. Like Brett, he completed 32 of 56 passing attempts for a "mutual" 57.1 percentage, Pederson throwing for 390 yards, Favre for 380. Each posted two touchdown passes and Pederson threw the only interception between them.

"It was tremendous," he admitted, assessing the experience. "It's unfortunate that Jim (McMahon) had to miss some time but it also gave me an opportunity to play a lot. And going into that first game as a Packer, and being able to execute this offense, it was one thing to do it in practice but to actually get out there and do it in a game with 60,000 people watching, I had a lot of fun. And I just hope that it will continue and it'll just get better for me."

He shortly made clear what he meant by the latter observation.

"By no means do I want to settle into a third-string role, or anything," he assured. "I want to get better and maybe move into a backup role some day. And I know Brett's going to be here – he's going to be a starter. It was the same way in Miami. Marino was going to be the guy."

Memorable game

Though Pederson has not seen regular season game action as a Packer, he had had his moments. One in particular came in 1993 when he was called upon to replace injured Dolphins starter Scott Mitchell in a game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

Coming off the bench, Doug led the Floridians on drives to two field goals, bringing Miami back from a 14-13 deficit to a 19-14 victory. The win was the 325th in Don Shula's distinguished coaching career, making him the winningest coach in NFL annals.

"That's probably the highlight of my career right now in the NFL," Pederson conceded. "And it was a tremendous feeling going out there on that field and actually getting that extensive work in a regular season game – and having the pressure of the 325th win for Coach Shula in an opposing team's stadium and being behind. I mean, there was a lot of adversity. And I think it was ... a team effort, you know, and I just happened to be the guy on the field at the time."

Starter or not, Pederson is clearly enjoying his Green Bay experience, more specifically, the winning and the upbeat atmosphere that currently surrounds the team.

"It's awesome right now," he said. "And it was that way – kind of the same situation I was in in '93 with the Dolphins. I was in the backup role, and I was playing a little bit, and we were 9-2.

"But, 8-1, it's tough to win games in this league and you know you're pretty good when you're 8-1, and sitting on top of the NFC."

From Mornhinweg's perspective, one of the Pederson's biggest assets as the Packers' third quarterback is his approach to his role.

"He has a super attitude," Marty said, "which is very important."

Even more important is the bottom line – competitively speaking.

Would he be comfortable, Mornhinweg was asked, should there be a repeat of last November's "Rubley" situation in Minnesota and Pederson find himself on the field?

"I'd feel extremely comfortable," Marty said, smiling and adding, significantly, "That's why he's here."

Running game gaining ground

Average up nearly 19 yards per game from '95

By W. Keith Roerdink

Despite a receiving lineup which seems to change on a weekly basis, the Packers had the No. 1 offense in the National Football Conference after nine games.

Quarterback Brett Favre is the most obvious reason, but a discriminating eye will also notice an improvement in the Packers' ground attack.

Nine games into the 1995 season, Green Bay was averaging 96.9 yards rushing per game. That number had them in the bottom third of the statistical rankings and they finished the season with an 89.3 yard average. This season, the team is averaging 115.8 yards rushing per game, 18.9 yards more than this time a year ago, good for the ninth best rushing attack in the league.

Sydney

"It's a big improvement because when we've needed to do it, we've been able to do it," running backs coach Harry Sydney said. "We've gotten some good chunks on runs and it's all part of winning. I think when you run the ball successfully, you can throw the ball successfully. If you take one away from the other, a defense can start looking for that one weapon."

A combination of factors is responsible for the rise, not the least of which is the emergence of William Henderson at fullback. At 6-foot-1, 248 pounds, Henderson is built in the classic, big-bruiser fullback mold. When he was plucked from North Carolina in the 1995 draft, many people were wondering 'William who?' But the Packers are reaping the benefit of his talent this year as he's opening holes for running back Edgar Bennett, not to mention chipping in over 200 yards rushing and receiving.

Then there's Bennett. After becoming Green Bay's first 1,000-yard rusher since 1978 last season, he's on pace to hit the millennium mark again – and he's doing it with less carries.

Through most of last season, Bennett played in pain with a variety of injuries. The plan for this year was to limit his carries and keep him healthier for the end of the season. Bennett has made the most of his touches on the ball with a 4.2 yard per carry average through nine games. His career average per carry heading into this season was just 3.4.

"It's going pretty good right now, but we can always improve," Bennett said. "Down the stretch it's going to be important for us to run the ball."

Dorsey Levens is the other piece of the backfield equation. After starting at fullback a year ago, he was replaced in 1996 by Henderson. No longer a starter, Levens has hardly been a forgotten man in the Packers scheme.

The former Georgia Tech halfback has been used as the single back on passing downs and has sliced through opposing defenses on the ground and through the air. He was the team's second-leading ground gainer with 225 yards on 62 carries and scored two touchdowns heading into Green Bay's game against Kansas City. Levens also had 12 catches, including three for scores, to give him five touchdowns for the year.

From left, William Henderson, Edgar Bennett and Dorsey Levens have combined to improve the Packers running game this season.

"With those two guys (Henderson and Bennett) and Dorsey you can do a lot of things," Sydney said. "It's the combination of the three that has allowed us to be successful."

"We were in a situation where the running game had been looked at as the black sheep in a sense," Sydney said. "But I got some guys that are working hard and they're taking care of the big things and I'm taking care of the little things."

If there is a surprising aspect to the resurgent running game, it may be that it has been done behind an offensive line that has featured some new faces and been hit by injuries. But when struck with adversity, it's done nothing but excel.

"I get a kick out of (the running game's success) for the running backs and the offensive line," Sydney said. "They're out there battling on every play."

The battle will have to continue if they hope to be playing in New Orleans in January.

"If you look at the teams that have won the Super Bowl in the last 10 years, the key they've had is they've been able to run the ball when they've needed to and they had a big fullback to block," Sydney said.

He should know. The former fullback has two Super Bowl rings from his years with the 49ers.

Take it away now: The Packers continue to set the pace for the rest of the NFL in the all-important takeaway category with 29.

Through nine games, Green Bay has picked off 22 passes and recovered seven fumbles. Against the Lions, the team failed to record a takeaway for the first time all season but continued to stay ahead of the Pack.

The 29 takeaways have been cashed in for 10 touchdowns and six field goals for a total of 78 points.

Injury updates: Antonio Freeman is out, but he is not down. The wide receiver has been hanging around with his teammates in the Packer locker room, rehabbing his broken left forearm and in general, staying optimistic about his return.

"It's a little sore right now, but each day I take a step forward so that's a positive thing," Freeman said. "They're just doing gradual movement type things (in rehab). Not a whole lot of pulling and yanking. Just gradual moving to get the circulation going and get my strength back. Each day

I'm rehabbing, it's getting better and I'm doing something I didn't do the day before."

Freeman is hoping to return Dec. 1 against the Chicago Bears. In the Packers first meeting with their division rival, Freeman had seven catches for 146 yards and two touchdowns as Green Bay downed Chicago 37-6.

"That'd be a heckuva game to come back for," he said.

Joining Freeman on the team's injury report heading into the Chiefs game was safety Eugene Robinson (ankle), tackles Ken Ruettgers (knee) and Earl Dotson (back), and defensive tackle Santana Dotson (knee). All were listed as questionable, but were expected to play.

Earl Dotson was rehabbing after leaving the Lions game with back spasms. Ruettgers continues to battle his way back from a chronic knee problem, but in the meantime rookie John Michels will start at left tackle.

Terrytime: Wide receiver Terry Mickens never lost confidence in himself while he was fighting to return from a severely sprained left ankle, but starting against Detroit and catching seven passes for 52 yards and a touchdown goes a long way.

"It let me know I could still play," Mickens said. "It had been such a long time and with the injury, I didn't know if I could come in and contribute like that."

That kind of clutch performance with Freeman and Robert Brooks out with injuries was sorely needed. While Mickens said position coach Gil Haskell has been a little easier on him, coach Mike Holmgren has taken a different approach.

"The head man is a little harder on you because he doesn't want you to get a big head," Mickens said, sitting in front of his locker with a smile. "It's a long season and there's a lot of room to improve."

Stamp of approval: A Vince Lombardi postage stamp, honoring the late Packers head coach and general manager, was unveiled in a pregame ceremony on Nov. 3 that was attended by Lombardi's daughter, Susan.

The stamp, to be issued in 1997, is part of the U.S. Postal Service's Legendary Coaches series. Others being honored are George Halas, longtime owner-coach of the Chicago Bears, Paul "Bear" Bryant and Glenn "Pop" Warner.

Trivia winner

Mark Carlovsky of Waupaca, Wis., won a copy of "Packer Legends in Facts" by correctly answering a trivia question published in the Oct. 26 issue of the Packer Report.

Carlovsky was selected from a number of people who correctly answered that 13 Packers started in all 16 games in 1995.

To win, all answers must be postmarked no later than one week from the date on the cover of the Packer Report. If there is more than one correct answer, a drawing will be held to select a winner. The books, which retail for $29.95, will be mailed out by Tech/Data Publications, Germantown, Wis., (414) 251-7027. 8 youth have big day at Lambeau

By Paula Martin

Forty boys and girls from the state of Wisconsin took the field at halftime of the Green Bay Packers and Tampa Bay Buccaneers game on Oct. 27 to compete in the finals of the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass and Kick Championship.

Eight youngsters ages 8-15 received top honors. Here are the winners in the boys divisions and their total distance in the event:

8 and 9 year olds: Anthony Curtis, Monroe, 212 feet, 9 inches;

10 and 11 year olds: Erik Kraus, Marshfield, 266 feet, 8 inches;

12 and 13 year olds: Ryan Krause, Algoma, 325 feet, 6 inches;

14 and 15 year olds: Jordan Sack, Sheboygan, 362 feet, 5 inches;

In the girls division, the winners included:

8 and 9 year olds: Meghan Schmidt, Port Washington, 167 feet, 3 inches;

10 and 11 year olds: Megan Pehler, Oregon, 244 feet, 1 inch;

12 and 13 year olds: Nicole Donner, Park Falls, 248 feet, 5 inches;

14 and 15 year olds: Danelle Pretasky, Galesville, 252 feet, 7 inches.

All competitors participated in punting, passing and kicking and their score was based on distance and accuracy. The boys and girls advanced to the competition at Lambeau Field after capturing top honors at the local and sectional levels.

Once all 30 team championships are completed and scores compared, the top four scores in each age group will qualify for the national finals to be held during halftime of an AFC playoff game Jan. 4 or 5.

This year, the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass and Kick competition included more than 375,000 youth competing in the U.S. and Canada.

Elections parallel team history

Records show Packers a better team under Democratic presidents

There are many ways to define the Packers' amazing longevity – from 1919 through half of 1996, such as:

■ The Ford Model T was a big seller when the Packers came to life.

■ When you made a telephone call, the operator said "number please."

■ A loaf of bread cost around 20 cents and a gallon of gas went for 25 cents, sometimes less.

■ The Packers won the NFL Championship when the Great Depression started.

■ They almost went broke in 1949 but eight years later built a new stadium.

There are scores of other reminders, including a few wars, but today let's emphasize a rather lengthy parallel to the Pack's long life, namely presidential elections and other related subjects.

Every four years the Democrats and Republicans go at each other like the Packers and Bears to get their man in the White House.

The Packers are now fresh from their 20th presidential election – a string that started back in 1920 when Warren Harding got the nod.

Art Daley

Featured columnist

As you know, Bill Clinton was re-elected President on Nov. 5, thus becoming President No. 42. Since the Pack got off the ground, 14 different presidents were elected in the 20 sawoffs.

Eight of the presidents were Republican – Harding, Cal Coolidge, Herbert Hoover, Dwight Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan and George Bush. Six were Democrat – Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Jimmy Carter and Clinton.

Now, how did the Packers fare in the presidential election years? Who did they play better under – the Democrats or the Republicans?

Excluding this season, the Packers played better under the Dems. The Packers posted a record of 67-44-4 for .600 when the Democrats won their nine elections. The Republicans won 10 elections but the Pack finished 65-64-6 for .503.

The Packers two best years with Democrats in office were both under Roosevelt: 10-3-1 in 1932 and 10-1-1 in the championship year of 1936. Under Republicans, Green Bay's two best years were 9-1-1 under Harding in 1920 and 10-4 under Ford in 1972.

Nixon and Ford were the only presidents to take part in official Packer functions. Nixon was here for a big program honoring Bart Starr on Oct. 18, 1970, while Ford was here for the dedication of the Packer Hall of Fame on April 3, 1976.

Nixon spoke before 6,000 people at the Brown County Arena, pointing out: "The 1960s will be remembered as the decade in which football became America's No. 1 sport; the Packers were the No. 1 team; and Bart Starr was the No. 1 quarterback. He's not only the No. 1 pro quarterback but he's a No. 1 American."

Starr, on the downside of his 16-year career, quoted baseball star, Lou Gehrig, in his response: "Today, I am the luckiest man in the world. Now I know what that man felt like." The next day was officially Bart Starr day but the Los Angeles Rams beat Starr and the Pack, 31-21.

Ford, in his dedication speech, noted that "I almost became a Packer because I was undecided about playing pro ball. Curly Lambeau wrote me and offered me a good contract, but I decided against football to become a lawyer." Ford was an All-American center at Michigan. Curly's letter is on display in the Ford museum in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ford is the only U.S. president who even came close to playing pro football. He was a center for the College All Stars when they played the Chicago Bears in 1934.

Lombardi figured Eisenhower might make a stop in Green Bay for a brief look at the Packers late in 1959, but it didn't work out. Vince had known Ike during his four years at West Point. Clinton was in Green Bay on Labor Day and slipped away to visit the Packers in Lambeau Field. Clinton said, "I never thought I'd see this place," referring to Lambeau Field.

Lombardi, a devout Catholic and a Democrat, was elated when Kennedy, a Catholic, was elected. A few days after the election Vince chuckled, "Well, we got one in the White House."

Kennedy appeared to be a Packer fan. He wired Vince congratulations after the Packers won their first two championships (1961-62) and Vince had been invited to the White House.

It was Friday, Nov. 22, 1963. The Packers had just finished a late-morning practice and most of them heard the news of the assassination of Kennedy in Dallas on their car radios as they left Packer headquarters after lunch.

The Packers were scheduled to play the San Francisco 49ers in Milwaukee and there were great objections to the NFL playing its schedule of games that weekend. However, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the games will be played because Kennedy was a big football fan.

Just before the Packers and 49ers came out for their warmups in County Stadium, news blared over the PA system that Lee Harvey Oswald, the accused assassin, was shot to death.

It was a subdued game, no band music, and there was little cheering even though the Packers won 28-10.

To be sure, your Packers covered a lot of presidential history.

SO TENDER IT MAKES YOU WANNA CRY!

GREAT FOR TAIL-GATING! TENDER JUICY AND DELICIOUS!

Lions face tough stretch

This week: Seattle
Series: Seahawks lead 2-4
Last meeting: Lions won 30-10, Oct. 17, 1993, at the Silverdome.

Scouting report: The reeling Lions need to regroup in order to get back into the playoff picture and end the annual "Wayne Watch."

After losses to the New York Giants and the Packers, the buzzards started circling Lion coach Wayne Fontes for the umpteenth consecutive year.

This may be a good time for the Lions to get going. Following a loss at Green Bay, the Lions played San Diego before hosting Seattle and playing at Chicago.

A good stretch there would prepare them for a brutal season-ending stretch that includes Kansas City, Minnesota, Green Bay and San Francisco.

Team leaders: Passing: Scott Mitchell 153-266, 1,824 yards, 14 TD, 11 INT; Rushing: Barry Sanders 165-797 (4.8 avg.), 4 TD; Receiving: Herman Moore 63-822 (13.0 avg.), 7 TD; Interceptions: Ryan McNeil 5; Punting: Mark Royals 47-44.0; Punt Returns: Glyn Milburn 22-9.0; Kickoff returns: Milburn 33-25.9.

NFC Rankings: Offense 4th overall (6th rushing, 5th passing); Defense 11th overall (7th rushing, 13th passing).

Notes: Don Majkowski started for the injured Scott Mitchell at quarterback for the Lions at Green Bay on Nov. 3.

Mitchell hurt his ribs the Thursday before the Packer game and showed up as "doubtful" on the late week injury report. Mitchell was listed Lions third quarterback for the loss at Green Bay.

■ Majkowski's start at Lambeau Field on Nov. 3 was his first since Sept. 20, 1992. Majkowski played for the Packers from 1987 to 1992. He made the Pro Bowl with the Packers in 1989.

This week: At San Diego
Series: Chargers lead 6-0
Last meeting: Chargers won 32-17, Jan. 2, 1993 in Tampa Bay. The Chargers are one of four teams the Bucs have never beaten. The others are New England, the Raiders and Pittsburgh.

Scouting report: This game will feature one of the games most heralded linebackers and one of its most unheralded.

While San Diego's Junior Seau has gotten the publicity, commercials and network close-ups, Hardy Nickerson quietly posts big numbers in Tampa Bay. Nickerson is on the brink of his fifth consecutive season of at least 100 tackles.

Tampa's fate may rest on who plays quarterback for the Chargers. When Stan Humphries is under center, the Chargers are very good. But when he's not, they are very beatable.

Team leaders: Passing: Trent Dilfer 142-277 1,531, 6 TD, 13 INT; Rushing: Reggie Brooks 106-355, (3.5 avg), 2 TD; Receiving: Mike Alstott 29-246, (8.5 avg.) 1 TD; Interceptions: Donnie Abraham 2; Punting: Tommy Barnhardt 40-42.6.

NFC Rankings: Offense 14th overall (tied 13th rushing, 13th passing); Defense 10th overall (13th rushing, 4th passing).

Notes: Errict Rhett made his first start at running back in the Bucs' game at Chicago Nov. 3.

Rhett, who played sparingly after ending a 90-day holdout prior to Tampa Bay's game against the Packers on Oct. 27, went most of the way against the Bears. His increased playing time decreased the playing time of rookie fullback Mike Alstott and running back Reggie Brooks, who were both impressive in Rhett's absence.

This week: At Oakland
Series: Raiders lead 7-2
Last meeting: Raiders won, 24-7, Sept. 5, 1993 at Los Angeles. The Vikings are 0-4 on the road in this series. This will be the Vikings first game at Oakland since 1984.

Scouting report: The key for the Vikings will be keeping up the Raiders tremendous speed and skill-position players.

Receivers Tim Brown, Quadry Ismail and John Jett and running backs Harvey Williams, Derrick Fenner and Napoleon Kaufman from an explosive offensive group.

It is imperative that the Vikings line, led by John Randle, put pressure on Raider QB Jeff Hostetler in order to slow that offensive arsenal.

Keeping their poise will also be a key for the Vikings. The Raiders are always among the most penalized teams in the NFL. Look for Oakland to be flagged for at least 10 infractions in this one.

Team leaders: Passing: Warren Moon 120-217, 1,423, (55.3 avg), 6 TD, 7 INT; Rushing: Robert Smith 162-692 (5.0 avg.), 4 TD; Receiving: Cris Carter 52-633 (12.2 avg), 5TD; Interceptions: Robert Griffith, Jeff Brady 3; Punt Returns: David Palmer 15-11.1, 1 TD; Touchdowns: Carter 5; Kicking: Scott Sisson 14-14 PAT, 14-19 FG, 56 points.

NFC Rankings: Offense 7th overall (11th rushing, 4th passing); Defense 6th overall (10th rushing, 5th passing).

Notes: Even though the Vikings wobbled coming off they bye week, they are in decent shape to make a run at the playoffs.

After next week's game at Denver, the Vikings conclude their season with games at Detroit and at home against Tampa Bay before taking on Green Bay.

This week: At Kansas City
Series: Chiefs lead 4-2
Last meeting: Bears won 19-17, Nov. 21, 1993. The Bear defense turned in one of its best outings of the year in pulling off the upset.

Scouting report: The Bears will have to squelch the Kansas City Chiefs' gamebreakers if they have a chance to win this one.

On offense, the Bears will have to contend with pass-rushing linebacker Derrick Thomas, who was among the AFC leaders in sacks through nine weeks. He is complimented nicely by defensive end Neil Smith. On defense, the Bears will have to stop running back Marcus Allen, especially close to the goal line. Allen is tied with Walter Payton for the all-time lead with 110 touchdowns. Even at age 38, Allen is still one of the most effective running backs in the league.

Team leaders: Passing: Erik Kramer 73-150, 781 yards, 3 TD, 6 INT; Rushing: Raymont Harris 63-284 (4.5 avg.), 1 TD; Receiving: Curtis Conway 48-637 (13.3), 3 TD; Interceptions: Donnell Woolford 3; Sacks: Alonzo Spellman 4.

NFC Rankings: Offense 10th overall (7th rushing, 12th passing); Defense 9th overall (6th rushing, 12th passing).

Notes: The Bears lost tight ends Ryan Wetnight and Keith Jennings in their win over Tampa Bay. Wetnight hurt his knee while Jennings broke a bone in his leg. That left rookie Bobby Neely as the Bears' only starter. Neely had one catch.

■ Linebacker Bryan Cox will be out for the rest of the year after surgery revealed his thumb was worse than originally thought.

■ Former Bears kicker Kevin Butler, released by Chicago in the final cutdown on Aug. 25, signed with Arizona on Nov. 5.

THE SERIES

Dallas holds a 12-10 advantage in the series which dates back to 1960. They are 9-5 at home and Green Bay has beaten them just twice in Texas Stadium, which opened in 1971. The Cowboys are riding a seven-game winning streak dating back to 1991 and the last three years have ended the Packers season come playoff time. Green Bay won eight of the first nine meetings between the teams. The Packers' last two wins were both in 1989 when Dallas went 1-15.

LAST MEETING

Dallas 38, Green Bay 27
Jan. 14, 1996, at Dallas

The Packers made their first trip to the NFC Championship Game since defeating the Cowboys in the Ice Bowl in 1967 but history did not repeat itself.

Green Bay took an early 3-0 lead, capitalizing on a blocked punt but Dallas came back with two Troy Aikman touchdowns. Brett Favre answered with two of his own, a 73-yarder to Robert Brooks and one to Keith Jackson. The Cowboys added a touchdown and a field goal for a 24-17 halftime lead. The Packers battled back and took a 27-24 lead into the final quarter, but Emmitt Smith, who had 150 yards on 35 carries, scored two touchdowns sandwiched around a Larry Brown interception to seal the win.

THE COACHES

Mike Holmgren
(0-6 vs. Cowboys)

Holmgren

Holmgren, 48, has the Packers off to their best start since the 1963 season and heading for their fourth consecutive playoff berth. Last year Holmgren guided the Packers to their first NFC Central Division title in 23 years and a berth in the NFC Championship Game for the first time since 1967. The fifth-year coach is 2-8 against NFC Eastern Division opponents with both wins coming against Philadelphia. In his spare time, Holmgren enjoys playing golf, reading history books and riding his Harley Davidson motorcycle.

Barry Switzer
(4-0 vs. Packers)

Switzer

Switzer, 59, was the hand-picked successor to Jimmy Johnson in 1994. During his two years as the Cowboys coach, Dallas went 24-8 and downed the Pittsburgh Steelers, 27-17, last year in Super Bowl XXX after beating Green Bay in the NFC Championship Game.

Before going to Dallas, Switzer coached at the University of Oklahoma for 16 years and led the Sooners to NCAA national championships in 1974, 1975 and 1985. Prior to becoming head coach of the Sooners, he spent seven years as an assistant. His coaching career began at the University of Arkansas.

Super Bowl champs losing their luster

By W. Keith Roerdink

They can still talk the talk, but the NFL circus known as the Dallas Cowboys has stumbled trying to walk the walk.

Through their first nine games, the defending Super Bowl XXX Champion Cowboys posted a meager 5-4 record and needed a last minute score to beat the then-winless Atlanta Falcons.

Struggles on the field have come on the heels of a troubling off-season. Star receiver Michael Irvin was in court on cocaine charges. Pro Bowl tight end Jay Novacek's back problems continued to bother him and ultimately kept him out of the lineup, and the Cowboys were hit hard by free agency, losing four defensive starters.

Dallas has had Green Bay's number recently, ending their season in the playoffs for three years running, but this clearly is not the same Cowboy team the Packers have faced in the past.

Offense

Emmitt Smith remains the heart of this unit and one of the toughest runners in the game despite a dip in his numbers. He is well below his 4.5 yard per carry career average and on pace to come in under 1,400 yards rushing for the first time in six years. Still, he is one of the league's best and has been a continual thorn in the Packers side.

The success of Smith can be shared by his offensive line, the biggest in pro football. Larry Allen has developed into one of, if not the top guard in the game. Along with linemates Nate Newton, Erik Williams, Mark Tuinei and Ray Donaldson, they form an imposing group.

Quarterback Troy Aikman has maintained a high level despite missing some of his favorite targets. Irvin missed the early part of the year serving a drug suspension and Novacek, who had been a vital cog in the passing game, has been out all year. Eric Bjornson has stepped in for Novacek and looks like he will develop into a worthy replacement. Irvin worked his way back to form and is joined by Deion Sanders in the starting lineup. Sanders' athletic talent is immense, but the two-way starter is hardly the threat at receiver that he is at cornerback.

Defense

The loss of four starters has not done much to deter this unit.

On the line, end Tony Tolbert is having one of his finest seasons as a pro with eight sacks through nine games. Charles Haley at age 32 is still a force on the other side and Leon Lett is a rising star at tackle. Chad Hennings moved into the starting lineup to replace Russell Maryland who left for Oakland.

Darrin Smith was the only starting linebacker from last year's Super Bowl team to return. The Cowboys have filled the void left by Dixon Edwards and Robert Jones with former Packer Fred Strickland in the middle and Viking castoff Broderick Thomas at strongside linebacker. Strickland was the team's top tackler through the first half of the season and Thomas had three sacks.

Sanders remains one of the best cover corners around, but had just one interception through nine contests. Kevin Smith, however, has cashed in for four at the other corner. With Darren Woodson and Brock Marion at strong and free safety, respectively, the Cowboys have perhaps the NFL's toughest secondary.

Special Teams

Herschel Walker, whose trade from the Cowboys to the Vikings in 1989 helped Dallas build its dynasty, returned to the Cowboys and has been providing a spark as one of the league's top kick returners. Receiver Kelvin Martin has handled the punt return chores vacated by Sanders.

Kicker Chris Boniol has continued to come through for the Cowboys when they've called on him, making 15 of 19 in his first nine games, with a long of 52 yards.

Packers aim to end string of nightmares in Texas Stadium

By Matt Tevsh

The Green Bay Packers' lack of success against the Dallas Cowboys has proven to be a rather large roadblock in the team's route toward the Super Bowl.

The Packers have lost seven straight overall to the Cowboys and are 0-6 under Mike Holmgren at Texas Stadium since 1992.

While the Cowboys hold a 12-10 edge in the overall history of the series between the two teams, it is the last six games that have created the makings of an intense rivalry paralleling Green Bay's slugfests against Chicago and Minnesota.

Troy Aikman, Michael Irvin and Emmitt Smith have all hurt the Packers in the last six losses to the Cowboys. In those games, Aikman has compiled a staggering 74% (114-154) completion rate, averaging 307.5 yards per game with 10 touchdown passes and four interceptions. Irvin has had more than 100 yards receiving in five of those games while Smith has pounded away at Green Bay's defense.

The following is a recap of the Packers-Cowboys games at Texas Stadium under Holmgren:

Cowboys 38, Packers 27, Jan. 14, 1996 (NFC Championship): The Packers, riding an emotional high from a 27-17 victory over the San Francisco 49ers the week before, faced perhaps the biggest game against the Cowboys yet. Unfortunately for Packer fans, it proved to be the same old story with a different plot.

Leading 27-24 after three quarters, the Packers were unable to stop Smith (150 yards on 35 carries) in the final quarter as the Dallas offensive line began to dominate.

Smith's first of two touchdowns in the fourth quarter came on a 1-yard run during a 90-yard, seven minute, 19-second drive. The Packers trailed 31-27, but Favre, who passed for 307 yards, threw a crucial interception to Larry Brown.

The Packers have had a hard time stopping Michael Irvin (88) and the Cowboys in Texas Stadium since 1992.

The Cowboys promptly turned the turnover into points needing only two plays to score, the final being a 16-yard Smith touchdown run to seal the win.

On top of what was a tough loss for the Packers, White was irate at the officiating following the game. John Jurkovic suffered ligament damage to his knee on a chop block by Cowboy tackle Erik Williams, and Packer receiver coach Gil Haskell suffered a serious head injury after being knocked down on the sideline.

White summed up the season saying, "We made a lot of progress. Before I retire, this team will win a championship."

Cowboys 34, Packers 24, Oct. 8, 1995: The Packers played too little, too late digging themselves into a 24-3 hole in the third quarter, but fought back to make the game competitive.

Favre led the offense on three straight scoring drives in the second half. A Favre 21-yard pump-fake and run for a touchdown with 8:13 remaining in the game closed the lead to 31-24. The Cowboys managed stop the Packers momentum, however, putting together a 13-play drive over the next 6:13 ending with a 35-yard Chris Boniol field goal.

Wide receiver Robert Brooks had 10 catches for 124 yards, but was offset by Aikman's 24-31, 316-yard performance and Irvin's 8 catches for 150 yards against Green Bay's top-ranked pass defense.

Holmgren agreed this game was similar to the other Dallas games: "It seemed like it. I'd like to think it was a little closer, but I don't know. They capitalized on our mistakes. It was a little deja vu."

Cowboys 35, Packers 9, Jan. 8, 1995 (NFC divisional playoff): The Packers, without Sterling Sharpe, suffered their largest post-season defeat of all time, failing to stop Aikman, who was 23-30 for 337 yards, and Irvin, who caught six passes for 111 yards.

Troy Aikman has completed 74% of his passes since '92 against the Pack.

Dallas delivered a knockout punch early in the game that the Packers could not recover from when Alvin Harper scored a 94-yard touchdown on a pass from Aikman. Dallas quickly gained the momentum and carried a 28-9 lead into halftime. Harper, Irvin and Jay Novacek each had 100-yard receiving days as the Cowboys rolled up 450 yards of offense and feasted on cornerback Terrell Buckley.

Sharpe had suffered a career-ending neck injury late in the season. Brooks filled in admirably for Sharpe, catching eight passes for 138 yards.

After the game, Holmgren had the following thoughts: "I believe we have some ground to make up, there's no question about that... but hey, it gives you something to shoot for and it keeps us working. I don't look at it in terms of how much ground we have to make up on someone else. I look at my football team – how we have improved, how I think we're progressing, and that's the only measuring stick I care about. We are better. We are headed in the right direction."

Cowboys 42, Packers 31, Nov. 24, 1994: During a Thanksgiving Day shootout, the Packers could not stop the Cowboy offensive wagon led by third-string quarterback Jason Garrett and dropped to 6-6 on the year, fighting for a playoff berth.

Favre and Sharpe hooked up four times on touchdowns of one, 36, 30 and five yards. Reggie White provided the inspiration, playing with a partially torn ligament in his left elbow that he suffered four days earlier in a tough loss against Buffalo. On his second snap of the game, he used his patented club maneuver to throw Cowboy tackle Larry Allen to the ground and sack Garrett.

Garrett, filling in for injured quarterbacks Aikman and Rodney Peete, had a career day, upstaging Smith's 133 yards rushing, throwing for 311 yards on 15-26, many completions of the "jump ball" variety to his receivers.

The Packers entered the game as the fifth-rated defense in the NFL, but gave up 436 yards and 36 second-half points.

Packers general manager Ron Wolf on whether or not the Packers gained ground on Dallas: "I don't think so. They had a sandlot quarterback playing. I don't think we have closed the gap."

Jan. 16, 1994, Cowboys 27, Packers 17 (NFC divisional playoff): Similar to the regular season meeting between the teams, the Packers scored first on Chris Jacke's 30-yard field goal only to see the Cowboys run off the next 24 points to grab a commanding 24-3 third quarter lead.

The turning point in the game came when Packer kick-returner Corey Harris fumbled a kickoff with the Packers trailing 10-3 and only 23 seconds remaining in the second quarter. The Cowboys recovered at the 14-yard line and two plays later Aikman found Novacek for a 5-yard touchdown pass to lead 17-3 at half and grab the momentum.

The Packers never could mount a serious charge as Aikman threw for 302 yards and three touchdowns and Irvin caught 9 passes for 126 yards. Favre had 331 yards passing and two touchdowns.

After the game, Favre said, "I've got to get better – everybody's got to get better – and we can be like the Dallas Cowboys. They are the best team in the NFL and we played hard. That's why I don't feel so bad. I think we took a step forward today. This is as big as they get and they didn't blow us out."

Cowboys 36, Packers 14, Oct. 3, 1993: The 22-point loss dropped the Packers to 1-3 on the season coming off last-second losses to the Philadelphia Eagles and Minnesota Vikings.

The Packers took a 7-0 lead on Edgar Bennett's one-yard touchdown run, but Dallas struck back in a big way.

The Cowboys scored on eight of their first nine drives compiling 26 unanswered points until Brooks' 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown in the third quarter. The Packers were held to 36 yards on 18 carries for the game while Aikman threw for 317 yards, 155 to Irvin.

"Our objective is to get where they are," Wolf said. "Obviously, we aren't there yet."

Lighten up a little

Dear Packer Report,

In regard to Paul A. Keup's letter (Oct. 26 Packer Report) about Nike's "Lombardi" commercials, I want to say I can understand his feelings about this matter. However, I have to admit they are one of the most enjoyable and entertaining commercials I've ever seen (running a close second is the "politically correct team prayer in the locker room" commercial on the FOX channel!)

I did not personally know Vince Lombardi. I was only 10 years old when I converted to "Packerism" – that was 35 years ago. Through the years, I believe a man like Vince Lombardi, if he was here with us today (in a sense he is), would look at these commercials and laugh. Any man or woman who is self-assured, confident in himself and charismatic does not personalize the matter of someone poking fun at them. They just laugh – because they know they have confidence in themselves – they just laugh! No, I don't work for Nike. I don't own any of their products, I just like their commercials. By the way, the Greek word Nike means "Victory." Victory was Vince Lombardi; Victory is the Green Bay Packers!

Life is too short. Vince Lombardi, above all people, knew that. So enjoy life and laugh a little.

Protect and Serve

Packer Report,

Be all you can be. Protect Brett Favre. He knows how to serve. Every battle has a big gun and you must protect it to win!

Try and imagine driving down a strange dark highway at 60 mph and your lights blow out. Not the way to go if you're going to get there in one piece. Radical example? I think not and here's why: You've got a great machine, the best tires and a full tank of gas. You've got the best driver behind the wheel who has to see where he's going. Whoever is in front protecting him, you are the headlights.

You've got the perfect directions on how to get there. Have a safe trip.

Hail Roger

Packer Report,

As I was reading my Packer Report, I came across an article by Art Daley concerning the origin of the phrase "Hail Mary" pass.

Since we did not always get the Packer games down here at that time, I had to watch what was showing on the TV at the moment. As I remember, it was a game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Minnesota Vikings and Dallas was losing with about 30 seconds left in the game. Roger "The Dodger" Staubach was quarterbacking Dallas at the time. Roger was scrambling as if his life depended upon it. He was running around more than "Frantic" Francis Tarkenton ever did. He let go with a pass of about 50 yards and it was caught in the end zone by one of his wide receivers and Dallas won the game as time ran out.

Staubach was asked in an interview after the game what he was thinking as he threw the pass. His answer was: "Hail Mary, Full of Grace." Everyone began laughing at that and that is the first time I had heard the term "Hail Mary" pass used.

I'm a 71-year-old Packer fan originally from Sheboygan, Wis., and I'll always be a rabid Packer fan.

R. A. Hertensteiner
St. Charles, Mo.

Editor's note: Dallas won the 1975 playoff game, 17-14. Drew Pearson was the receiver who caught the pass.
